

Finding a way to introduce handhelds to the educational system...

"The education market is the newest battleground for hand-held-device makers, and the stakes are huge. According to the U.S. Department of Education, there were 68.1 million students enrolled in everything from elementary schools through universities in 1999."

The Wall Street Journal, Sept., 2000

